

Morley Guest Speaker At 94th Commencement

Three Former Students Die In War Zone

Three more Loyola College alumni have been recently reported killed in action.

Lieutenant William L. Baldwin, ex. '44, USAAF, was killed in action on a raid over Germany in November. He had been previously reported missing by the War Department.

Sgt. Francis J. Dailey, Jr., ex. '45, USA, was reported killed in action in the European theatre of war last month. He was serving with the U. S. Infantry in Germany.

Sgt. William C. Watson, ex. '36, USA, was reported killed in action early this month. He was serving with the U. S. Infantry in Germany. European theatre of war.

Baldwin Prominent

While at Loyola, Lt. Baldwin had an excellent record. He was Secretary of the Freshman Debating team and was a versatile athlete, playing intramural basketball, softball, tennis, and qualifying for track.

He was graduated from Loyola High School in 1941, having attained an average of 90 in all of his subjects.

A public Mass of Requiem was offered for the repose of his soul by the President, the Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., in the College (Continued on page 3, col. 3)

Hiltz Governs Debating Club

Robert Hiltz, newly elected President of the Bellarmine Debating Society, announced that Loyola College would engage in its first inter-collegiate debating contest this evening against St. Joseph's College of Philadelphia. The debate will start at St. Joseph's at 8 p. m.

The topic under discussion is the National Collegiate question: "Resolved that the Federal Government should enact legislation requiring compulsory arbitration of all labor disputes."

Loyola Holds Affirmative

Robert Hiltz and Thomas Lalley will uphold the affirmative for Loyola.

Tonight's debate will be conducted according to strict parliamentary procedure, with each speaker delivering ten minute speeches and five minute rebuttals.

Prior to this evening's contest, the Society prepared for its discussion by analyzing the topic under consideration, and by conducting a preliminary debate during the Wednesday meeting last week. William Rogers and John Reilly supported the negative, while Hiltz and Lalley upheld the affirmative.

Lalley Chosen Secretary

At the elections held two weeks ago, Hiltz was re-elected President and Lalley was chosen Secretary of the Society.

The Rev. Matthew G. Sullivan, S. J., Moderator of debating, intends to arrange a large schedule of debates for the remainder of the year with colleges in Maryland and Washington, D. C.

Five Receive ASN Honors

The formal reception for the five newly elected members to the Alpha Sigma Nu, the Jesuit Honor Fraternity, was held last Sunday afternoon in the Faculty House at Evergreen. A buffet supper followed the reception.

Initiation Ceremony

The five members received were three Seniors: Donald Giblin, Joseph Gessler, Dodd Carr; and Juniors: George Edwards and Laurence Molloy. Each of the five was presented with the ASN diploma and key. Wearing their caps and gowns, the candidates stood before the assembled body of ASN members, both alumni and students, and before the Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., President of Loyola College, who presided.

Mr. Gessler is President of the I. R. C., and a member of the Sodality; Mr. Carr is Math Club President; Mr. Giblin is retiring President of the Student Council to which Mr. Molloy was recently elected, and Mr. Edwards is a member of the Sodality, and the Masque and Rapier Society.

Ideals Explained

Three men read papers which set forth the ideals of the Fraternity on Loyalty, Service, and Scholarship. To these expectations and requirements the new members pledged their support, as well as their efforts to uphold and encourage the activities of the College.

Distinctive scholastic and activity records are essential requirements for membership in the Honor Fraternity.

30 To Receive Degrees; Kernan Valedictorian

The ninety-fourth Commencement exercises of Loyola College will be held on Sunday, February 4, in the Gymnasium at Evergreen. The exercises will begin at 3:30 p. m. Thirty candidates will receive their Bachelors' degrees in Arts, Philosophy, Science, and Business Administration.

Dr. Felix Morley, the President of Haverford College, Philadelphia, will address the graduates. A degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, will be presented to William Joseph Casey; and Dr. Thomas W. Keown, A. B., '95, will be awarded the Golden Jubilee Medal, commemorating his fiftieth year of graduation.

Carroll Medal

Charles C. Conlon, Sr., '06, President of the Alumni Association, will receive the Carroll Medal as the most outstanding alumnus.

John J. Kernan, Editor of the Evergreen, will deliver the Valedictory on the topic "Christian Education and Democracy." After the ceremony, a buffet supper will be served for the distinguished guests and the graduates.

Baccalaureate Mass

Prior to the Graduation Exercises, the traditional Baccalaureate Mass will be offered at St. Ignatius Church on the morning of graduation at 9. The Rev. Charles Yingling, '23, will celebrate the Mass.

He will be assisted by the Rev. Thomas J. Higgins, S. J., Professor of Ethics, and the Rev. Matthew Sullivan, S. J., Professor of Psychology. The Rev. Edward Kerr, S. J., President of Loyola High School, will preach the Baccalaureate sermon.

Of the thirty degrees, eighteen will be that of Bachelor of Science, seven Bachelor of Arts, three Bachelor of Philosophy, and two Bachelor of Science in Business Administration.

Accelerated Courses

The graduating class was originally known as the class of '45, and under a three year course would have graduated in June. However, a speed-up in courses enabled their graduation to be moved up five months to February.

Four of the thirty graduates have already enlisted and are serving in the Armed forces, while

Student Council Tokens Awarded

Student Council Pins will be awarded, at the graduation exercises on Sunday afternoon, February 4, to members of the Senior Class who have been active on the Council for at least one year.

The Very Rev. President of the College will confer the pins on the following Seniors: Andrew A. Alecce, Dodd S. Carr, Joseph L. Gessler, Jr., Donald J. Giblin, and Paul E. Hilmer.

This Student Council token signifies that the recipient has made a definite contribution in strengthening the extracurricular life of the College.

Alecce, Carr, Gessler, Giblin, and Hilmer, represented the following activities in the Student Council respectively: the Chemistry Club, the Mathematics Club, the International Relations Club, President of the Council, and the Senior Class.

Molloy, Meagher Elected Council And A. A. Heads

As a result of the elections for the two highest student offices, Laurence P. Molloy was elected the new Student Body President and President of the Student Council, and Charles C. Meagher emerged as the new Athletic Association President. Both were officially inaugurated into their positions on December 20 in an assembly in the Library.

This year's elections were most unusual since, for the first time in the history of Loyola College, the new Student Council President, Mike Molloy, was elected by the Student Council itself. As he was the lone nominee for the office, the Council approved his nomination.

Close Vote For A. A. Head

When the ballots were counted, Mr. Meagher's victory was announced, but only after a close vote. Mr. Meagher's opponents, William Hodges and Lou Franz, received enough ballots to make the race a narrow one. Meagher and Hodges split the Freshman Class. The Sophomore and Junior Classes almost evenly divided their votes among the three, with Lou Franz getting a slight edge. Meagher carried the majority of the Seniors.

The Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., administered the oath of office to the new Council President, who took the oath on the Charter of Loyola College. Then Fr. Bunn introduced Mr. Meagher to the assembled Student Body in his official capacity.

Molloy Experienced

The functions of the Student Council are not new to Mr. Molloy, since he has been an officer-member of this organization for the past two academic years. During both years he held the office of Council Treasurer. He is also Secretary of the Sodality, member of the I. R. C., Dramatic Society and THE GREYHOUND. Since his sophomore year he has been President of his class. More recently Mr. Molloy was elected to the Alpha Sigma Nu, the Jesuit Honor Fraternity.

Mr. Meagher, the new A. A. head, assumes his duties with the capability and leadership that come from his three years' activity in sports at Loyola. He has engaged in intramurals, lacrosse, and is manager of the basketball team. Mr. Meagher is also active in the Sodality, the I. R. C. and the Dramatic Society. Fr. Bunn praised his interest and leadership warmly.

Pfc. Wilkinson Listed Missing

Pfc. William S. Wilkinson, '43, USA, has been reported missing in action by the War Department. He was taking part at the time in action around Metz with the Third Army.

A graduate of Loyola High School in 1939, Wilkinson entered Loyola College and received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration in January 1943. Two months later he was inducted into the Army.

While at the college he was a member of the Holy Name Society, the Accounting Club, and the Social Science Club. In the field of sports, he participated in intramural softball and tennis for three years.

Juniors Plan July Annual

The July '45 Class of Loyola College has decided to publish a Yearbook, in spite of the fact that the class has lost over three-fourths of its original number to the armed forces.

Edwards Made Editor

George Edwards will be the Editor of the Evergreen, while William Meyer will handle the Sports Department. The Rev. Thomas J. Higgins, S.J., is the Moderator of the Evergreen.

The advertising campaign, led by Laurence P. Molloy, is already under way to help finance the book. Contracts have been drawn up for the printer, and the annual publication will be issued in early July, the month of graduation of the present Junior Class.

Other Editors Chosen

Joseph Heinekamp was chosen the Photography Editor; Howard Strott, the Business Manager; Frank Cashen, the Copy Editor; and Thomas Royer, the Circulation Director.

Carroll Medal Will Commend Alumni Prexy

Mr. Charles C. Conlon, Sr., '06, will be awarded the Carroll Medal in recognition of his services to the College as a loyal alumnus, at the graduation exercises, on Sunday, February 4, in the Gymnasium. He is now the President of the Alumni Association.

Born in Baltimore in 1888, he attended St. Pius' Parochial school, and was graduated from Loyola High School in 1902. On being graduated from Loyola College he took a position with the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

However, he later transferred to the Globe Indemnity Company at Newark in 1922. Soon afterwards he returned to his previous employer, and since 1929 has been Vice-President of this company.

He is also a member and secretary of the SS. Philip and James Conference, St. Vincent de Paul Society. All three of his sons are graduates of Loyola High and two of them of Loyola College.

Casey Merits LL.D Degree

William J. Casey will be the recipient of an Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws at the graduation exercises on February 4, in the Gymnasium. The Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S.J., President of Loyola College, will read the citation lauding Mr. Casey.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Casey received his education at St. Vincent's Parochial School and Calvert Hall College, with supplementary courses at the University of Maryland School of Law and Loyola College.

Numerous Offices

Prominent in business, banking, and management, Mr. Casey was also the Financial Editor with THE SUN PAPERS of Baltimore. After holding many offices, he became Vice-President and then President of the Continental Trust Company. He was also made Senior Vice-President of the Maryland Trust Company and a member of the Board of Directors.

His activity and interest in civic affairs is attested to by the fact that he is trustee of the Baltimore Museum of Arts, the Enoch Pratt Free Library, as well as Treasurer of the Baltimore Chapter of the American Red Cross, and a member of the Lay Council of Loyola College.

Public Interest

Mr. Casey finds time also for either the directorship of, or membership in, sundry Commissions which have ably affected the efficiency and administration of public business. To these achievements and many others, he now adds the distinction of Doctor of Laws.

Universities Committee Reports:

Faculty Views Machinery To Stop World Disputes

1. Relative Urgency of World Police and World Court. Looking forward to victory and beyond, the question naturally arises: what shall be our first concern in the post-war world, a World Police to enforce law, or a World Court to insure justice? The obvious answer seems to be—create both, and do it now! If it can be shown that both agencies can be created simultaneously and immediately, this should be done. The immediate value of each is apparent.

The existence of a world peace force should make for greater willingness to accept a just peace rather than a vindictive one; it should make unnecessary the demands for strategic boundaries, and would reveal as insincere many of the demands of nations for great increases of territory. Similarly, the existence of a workable agency for prior peaceful settlement of disputes will make the use of the world peace force or police less necessary, and its actual use more justifiable when such action is eventually taken.

Which Created First?

However, the question still stands: if there is to be a time lag between the two agencies, which should be created first? At the moment, when force is the chief thought of a world at war, we are apt to consider enforcement agencies as the most important guarantee of peace. But if we project ourselves into the years after peace, we will see a somewhat different picture. The Axis will have been decisively defeated. The United Nations will be practically exhausted. Even without the creation of such enforcement bodies there will be at least a generation of peace.

True, in the long-range program for the future, an enforcement body is most necessary. But if its present erection is going to interfere seriously with other more urgent problems, it should be deferred to the future. The notion of a World Police is not yet a thing of general acceptance. The obstacles of sovereignty, nationality, supply and demand, are great enough to make its creation practically impossible.

Force Not Urgent

The application of force by sanctions and other forms of pressure faces the same obstacles in practice. Both of these enforcement features will be necessary later; they should be created as soon as possible. If their creation meets with opposition, it should not be considered as a serious setback, for their need is not so immediately urgent, and their eventual existence, if remote, is none the less inevitable.

Just Peace Essential

Of more immediate concern seems to be the matter of securing a just peace and creating the necessary machinery for the peaceful settlement of international questions that may arise after the peace. The return of war and resort to force will be made much more remote if the peace settlement is actually a just one and if there is set up a workable agency for the peaceful settlement of international disputes and the amendment of treaties.

If this is done as soon as possible, nations will have little justification for eventual resort to force, even after they have recovered sufficiently to use it. By that time the enforcement agency should be ready.

2. Agencies for the Peaceful Settlement of International Disputes. In creating the machinery for settling disputes between nations the difference between "legal" and "political" disputes must be recognized.

While the exact line of demarcation may in many actual cases be most difficult to determine, in general a legal dispute is one based upon international law involving the meaning of the law and its application to the case at hand, whereas a political dispute is one based upon a clash of national, political, economic, cultural or strategic interests, and involving decisions based on political wisdom and expediency, rather than on strict legal justice.

For the settlement of legal ques-

News In Brief

Lieutenant Thomas G. Daniels, ex. '45, USAAF, spent two or three afternoons at Loyola, and related some of his experiences. At present he is a Graduate Pilot and was home on furlough for thirteen days. He took his training at Selman Field, Louisiana.

J. Fred Bampfield, Seamon 1/c, ex. '45, recently completed the course at the Naval Primary Radio Training School at Texas A. & M. College, and is now assigned to the Air Electrical Maintenance School at Corpus Christi, Texas.

Seaman Leo H. Haslbeck, ex. '45, USNR, stopped at Evergreen and recounted some of his training camp experiences. He has recently completed a course in the radio school at Great Lakes, Illinois. Seaman Haslbeck was the captain of last year's Green and Gray golf squad.

Cadet E. O'Neill Cole, ex. '45, USAAF, spent many hours of his recent fourteen day furlough, working out with the Greyhound basketball team. A member of last year's basketball contingent, Neill entered the service before the completion of the season.

First Lieutenant John C. Hyle, '42, USMC, was recently granted a leave after participating in action against the Japanese.

Operating from Majuro in the Marshall Islands, his squadron attacked the Jap-held atolls of Milil, Wotje, Maleolap and Jaluit. Previous to this, he was stationed at Midway Island.

Corporal Vernon Cox, ex. '39, USAAF, who is stationed in California, was recently cited by a local evening paper as the outstanding member of the Hamilton Field basketball team. Corporal Cox enlisted in the Army Air Forces in July 1942. At the present time he is engaged in looking after recreation facilities of returning veterans.

Lieutenant (j.g.) Bernard J. O'Neill, '39, USNR, apparently has been in the thick of action in the Pacific. At the helm of one of our Navy's PT Boats, Lt. O'Neill sighted and attacked a 4,000 ton Japanese transport. When his torpedoes missed their mark, and while under heavy shell and machine gun fire, he coolly radioed the transport's position, course and speed, to one of the nearby destroyers. A short time later he received a message from the destroyer confirming the sinking of the transport.

Commander's Rank Awarded Pridgeon

Commander Charles T. Pridgeon, ex. '34, has been recently promoted to the rank of a full commander in the United States Navy. He was also assigned as Senior Dental Officer of a unit of the United States Naval Training Center at Sampson, New York.

He wears the Pacific Ribbon, decorated with three stars, earned when he saw action aboard a battleship. He also wears the American Defense Ribbon with one star, and the American Theatre Ribbon.

The commander is married to the former Miss Dorothy E. Killman, and they have two children: Charles Taylor, Jr., five years, and Sandra N., three months old. Their home is at 803 N. Washington St., Baltimore, Md.

Gilbert's Band Pleases Sophs

The Sophomore Class of Loyola College held its first dance of the new year on January 13. The dance featured the music of Johnny Gilbert and his orchestra. Although this was the first time that Mr. Gilbert performed at Evergreen, he won the immediate acclaim of the student body.

Mr. Bardelman, President of the Class, wishes to thank the Alumni and Servicemen, as well as all students who attended, for helping to make this first dance the outstanding success that it was.

Dailey entered the service in the Spring of 1943, while a freshman at Loyola College. He undertook his basic training at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina. He was then transferred to Lafayette College as an Engineering Cadet.

He received his final training at Camp Cleveland, Louisiana, before leaving for overseas duty in September, 1944. While in Europe, he participated in action in Belgium and Holland.

He was graduated from Loyola High School in June, 1942, and entered Loyola College in September.

In his short stay at the college, he was elected treasurer of the Freshmen Class.

Watson From City

Watson was graduated from Baltimore City College in June, 1932, entering Loyola College in the A. B. course in the Fall. His picture, which appears above, shows him with Corporal's stripes. However, before his death he was promoted to the rank of Sergeant.

To date, twenty-one alumni have given their lives in the Service. A complete service list will appear in the March 9 issue of THE GREYHOUND, together with the pictures of each hero who has made the supreme sacrifice.

IRC Presents Peace Views

A meeting of the Maryland Region of the International Relations Clubs was held at Notre Dame of Maryland College on Sunday, January 14. The topic was the Dumbarton Oaks Proposals, and the four colleges represented were: Notre Dame of Md., Western Maryland, Mt. St. Agnes, and Loyola.

Such was the initial meeting of this newly-instituted group, and served to give expression to the opinions of the individual IRC's in each College concerning the Dumbarton Proposals. These proposals were analyzed, modified and weighed by the delegates who expressed their views on what changes should be made in the Proposals.

Prior to this, Loyola's IRC convened in its bi-monthly meetings here at school, and through discussion by its members determined its opinion and stand on the Dumbarton Proposals.

At the forthcoming meeting of the NFCCS at Trinity College, Washington, Dumbarton Oaks will be the only item on the agenda. Each of the IRC's had previously sent two detailed reports to Trinity College explaining the work it had been doing in its own club.

Faculty Views World Peace

tions there must be a World Court. The basis for the action of the Court should be made most clear. It should apply international law as found in conventions and treaties and all other internationally accepted principles for the conduct of relations among sovereign states. Within the limits prescribed, the jurisdiction of the Court should be compulsory and its decisions binding.

To allow exceptions (e.g., disputes involving the Monroe Doctrine, questions arising between members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, Soviet relations with states of Eastern Europe) would be to open the gates to wholesale evasion and would eventually destroy the Court.

Out Of Court Arbitration

However, even after the erection of the Court with its compulsory jurisdiction, it should still be possible for questions to be settled peaceably out of court by arbitration. Where the disputants agree to employ arbitration and to abide by the decisions rendered, they should be permitted to do so, even though the case would come under the jurisdiction of the Court.

Arbitration gives opportunity for a more amicable settlement and allows for the consideration of reasons beyond the strictly legal in coming to an understanding. But in such cases of arbitration, the loser must always have the right of appeal to the Court if not satisfied with the justice of the award. Otherwise, political pressure might well be used to secure decisions, and the workings of the Court be nullified.

Political Disputes

Political disputes should be settled by political means, by a political body, composed of representatives of the States. Its decisions are questions of policy requiring for their enforcement political acceptance by the States. No legal decision of a Court is possible in such cases. Neither would a technical answer of a council of experts suffice. It must be decided by the ones who are expected to abide by the decision, the States.

In the composition of this political body the most serious dispute centers around the question of representation. The first conclusion is usually in favor of equal representation of States. It seems to the members of the Committee that such a conclusion is hasty and mistaken. The sovereign equality of States should by all means be preserved, and to this end all States should be granted representation, should be guaranteed equal protection of the law, etc. But besides this equality of rights there is also a patent inequality of function that must be taken into account.

Inequalities Recognized

Nations differ in many respects: size, resources, trade, education, political maturity, etc. They participate unequally in world activities because of these inequalities. If nations are to be expected to support the decisions of this political body its composition must in some way reflect the reality of the position of the nations in the world. The nation with vast world trade will have a stake in world peace that differs from the nation that is largely self-sufficient. Some system of weights should be used in the formation of the body that is to commit nations on international political questions.

Each state should have at least one vote and additional votes should be allowed to account for additional interests and responsibilities resulting from these factors. In this way alone will the political body reflect the political situation and in this way only will it obtain the support necessary for success.

Second only to the question of composition stands that of voting. The success of the political body in solving international disputes will depend largely on the use of a

Strott Claims NFCCS Aids Loyola Spirit

"The National Federation of Catholic College Students was an influential factor at Loyola last year, and we expect that in the future it will broaden its scope to embrace even more activities here," reported Howard Strott, senior delegate to NFCCS from Loyola.

The first meeting of the Federation early in November at Notre Dame of Maryland laid the groundwork for last year's activity, and at the coming meeting on February 4 at Trinity College, the NFCCS will treat of the work of all the International Relations Clubs of the Colleges.

Aims Of NFCCS

As a distinctively unique organization among Catholic Colleges in the United States, the NFCCS aims at unifying the student groups of these institutions so as to assist them in their activities, to act as a medium for the exchange of ideas, to furnish them with practical material in the field of Catholic Action, and to represent the Catholic Student Groups in national and international life.

Composed of regional sections which meet six times a year, the Federation, through its delegates, discusses the activities of the Colleges in its region and adopts policies which will serve to benefit and unify these schools. The Maryland Region is composed of the following Colleges: Notre Dame of Maryland, Mt. St. Agnes, Trinity, Dunbarton, Georgetown Visitation, Catholic University, Mt. St. Joseph's (Emmitsburg), Georgetown University, Immaculata, and Loyola.

When the second meeting was held at Dunbarton College in Washington, the Colleges exchanged detailed activity sheets which set forth the functions of the clubs and organizations of each. These were carefully read, and at this meeting publicity plans were discussed and the Federation drew up its report for the National Conference which was held in Detroit, December 29 and 30.

Publish Paper

A monthly publication, the Federation Forum, is put out by the NFCCS and distributed among the members of the Student Council. In this paper the reports of the various Commissions are published, and advances in accomplishments are noted.

These Commissions are held by different member Colleges for the purpose of concentrating on and studying some problem of Catholic Action or the work of some College organization or secular field. Examples of this would be Trinity's International Relations Commission (the topic of the forthcoming meeting in February) and St. Joseph's Radio Commission.

The Rev. Joseph M. Supple, O. M. I. of Catholic University is Regional Moderator, and the Regional officers are: President, Peggy Wintz; Vice-President, Gene Hall; Recording Secretary, Anne Wickham; Corresponding Secretary, Virginia Elly; Treasurer, Robert Hiltz. Mr. Hiltz is Loyola's junior representative.

Now - For The Future!

"There is a tide in the affairs of men which when taken at the flood leads on to fortune." Who of us can doubt that the destructive affairs of men have reached flood-tide? Who, moreover, will not admit that now is the time of opportunity and planning? And who will not agree that action now will lead—"on to fortune?"

While others are planning with abstract actions and proposals, Loyola College has sublimated plans—for action. The entire activity of those at Evergreen, from the Faculty down to the newest student, is geared towards present undertakings for the hoped-for promise of the future.

Let us review some of the aspects of this post-war actuality. In the vanguard is the leadership of Loyola in the work of the Maryland Educational Conference for Post-War Planning. This enterprise, conceived but a year ago, enfolds in its orbit every degree and kind of educational institution in the state of Maryland.

In the field of Jesuit education, there flourishes the cooperative enterprise of all the Deans of the Jesuit high schools and colleges in the Maryland Province. Liberal allowances and requirements concerning entrance into college have been agreed on by this body which has reaped from its labors far-reaching achievement.

Perhaps the recent institution of the Educational and Vocational Council for Loyola Veterans of World War II will be closest to the hearts of the near one thousand sons of Loyola in the armed forces. Through this Council any Loyola man in the services can receive the proper advice as to how best he can receive the most benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights. Loyola's concern is for her every student, and no obstacle of place or distance will offer an impasse. The Educational Council offers thorough advice and encouragement to all who ask it.

Even the opinion of the College Faculty may be seen in their resolutions drawn up in the weekly meetings of the Universities Committee on Post-War International Problems. Pertinent questions have been and are being discussed, and the decisions regarding them are published in THE GREYHOUND.

And that each shall have an equal voice in expressing his opinion, the Students' International Relations Club has not only analyzed current problems and peace plans, but has voiced its opinion in Conferences, in which all the colleges on the eastern seaboard have participated, and at which Loyola has been represented.

Both in their informal discussions and even in their speech classes the students are being encouraged to evaluate the merits of the Dumbarton Oaks Proposals. Finally, active industry characterizes Loyola's work in the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

In fine, then, the record when added up yields one common denominator. It, plainly, is Action for the Future—NOW!

Congratulations

With the outbreak of hostilities in both the European and Asiatic theatres of war, college education and collegiate life suffered a serious setback. Many prophesied that all but the largest colleges would be compelled to close their doors, and Loyola too was an object of these dire forebodings.

All of these mournful predictions came to naught as Loyola not only continued its magnificent scholastic program, but held more graduation exercises during the War than was thought humanly possible.

An example of this type of perseverance will be observed on February 4, when thirty young men will receive degrees.

THE GREYHOUND takes this opportunity to congratulate the authorities of the College for their courage in surmounting so many obstacles.

And felicitations are also due to the young men who will receive diplomas. They have studied in an accelerated course which demanded of them long hours and patient industry.

We wish them Godspeed as they leave Loyola to take up their future work, imbued with the Christian spirit of intelligent thinking and correct moral conduct. We feel sure that they will show their gratitude to their Alma Mater by becoming active members of the Alumni Association, and by supporting the plans of the Association for the building of a bigger and better Loyola.

Loyola needs devoted Alumni: men who will not forget the invaluable training that they received here. Graduates of February 1945, remember this is your college!

The Reader's Right

Editor of THE GREYHOUND.

Dear Sir:

I thought that I would take this opportunity to inform you how much the dear old GREYHOUND is appreciated by this alumnus. I shouldn't really restrict the sentence in that manner because every one on board is an avid fan of its columns. You know the only pleasures we have out here are in this order of importance: mail, food, movies, and reading. Under this latter category THE GREYHOUND takes a top billing.

It occurred to me that perhaps you would like to hear an interesting example of how Loyola men meet. Yesterday, the feast of the Immaculate Conception, and also the first day that we had the opportunity to go to Mass in several months, I went aboard a tender to attend Mass. During the Mass we were given general absolution to enable all of us to go to Communion. While waiting in line, I spied Gus Hennegan. We met after Mass and had a swell day together with the cooperation of the executive officers of our respective ships. Gus is on a destroyer out here that has seen quite a bit of action, and he had some interesting stories to spin. Yes, it certainly strikes me as typical that Loyola men should meet in church, and Gus agreed. He met Joe Nouss waiting to go to confession and Francis Kearney in church out here somewhere.

I certainly do miss all the old gang at school, and if I ever get back to the States, Loyola will be one of my first stops. Keep those papers rolling. They are certainly appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

Lt. (j.g.) Thomas Cinnamond, '43, USNR.

Dear Father Gibbons:

Well, this may be my last letter for awhile. I hope to be seeing the Staff soon, for, on the 27th of this month, I am coming home for an eight day furlough.

I notice that my class, or what remains thereof, graduates on February 4. What I would like to know is, what events the class will have in the week preceding their graduation? Will there be any dances or stag parties?

There is not too much news to relate at present. I've been enjoying all the issues of THE GREYHOUND and I'm glad to see that the paper is maintaining its high level and standards despite the day's problems.

So until I am home, I remain,

Pvt. Frank J. Goldsmith, ex. '45.

NEW SECRET WEAPON

When Admiral Ingram recently announced the high possibility of Germany carrying out its threat to buzz bomb New York and Washington, the Rev. Scientific Pilot Found Superior In Level Flight

Superiority of a robot pilot over a human pilot, in holding a plane on its course and in correcting for deviations from straight and level flight, has been demonstrated by aviation engineers of General Electric.

Using a hook-up of an automatic pilot with a Link trainer, the engineers proved that in a long, straight-line flight, the craft will not deviate from its set course more than one-half of one degree and that it will correct the plane's altitude, when it is off-line, more quickly and accurately than a human pilot.

Used On Navy Bombers

This G-E automatic pilot employed in the test is being used widely on Navy torpedo bombers. Its function is to provide relief for the human pilot by taking over the controls and maintaining a course he sets. In doing so, it relieves him of the physical duty of controlling the flight and will hold the airplane on a steady course than the flyer can by hand.

The trainer was used in the demonstration to simulate the actual stormy, unstabilized conditions a pilot might meet in a plane. Similar types are used in training fliers.

The instructors throw the flier into spins, dives, and other dangerous positions, challenging him to bring the ship back to an even keel.

In the demonstration, the engineers showed that an automatic pilot will start correcting action as soon as the plane begins to move off its course.

Human Pilot Slower

Reactions of a human pilot are much slower, they found, because at least one-tenth of a second is required for the message that he is off course to reach his brain; then he must have time to adjust his controls by hand.

The secret of the speedy, accurate performance of the robot pilot is an electrical gyroscope. Any pitch, roll, or yaw produces an electrical signal in the gyroscope, which in turn is amplified and converted into mechanical power which moves the elevators, ailerons, and rudder to bring the airplane back to its correct altitude and course.

Alert Librarian Keeps Accurate Modern Files

by John Ahlers

Odd as it may seem, we wish to report that the Loyola College library is in the Library Building. In spite of this revolutionary statement, however, we would like to offer a few facts which we assembled, and which, we think, will be of special interest to all the intellegentsia, to the ardent devotees of the library, and to all the other avid seekers of "book larnin."

The first bit of information which we discovered with the generous assistance of Mrs. Hubbard, the librarian, is the fact that—if a buzz bomb hit the college library, over 35,000 volumes would be strewn over the Evergreen area. And from here on the wonders increase.

Volumes Transferred

The main body of the original library was the property of the Jesuits in Southern Maryland. After the collection had been moved from the country manor where it had been kept, it paused at several new residences before finally settling down here at Evergreen.

Bearing the wear of approximately a half-dozen changes, although the library suffered (as is only natural), it did retain the major portion of its original number of books. The actual systematizing and cataloguing of the collection, however, was not begun until 1932.

Library Has Complete Files

At the present time there are complete files containing all the books in the Library Building, with additional files for the reference books in the science libraries and for the old and rare volumes which grace the collection.

The present cataloguing, although not perfect, as Mrs. Hubbard explained as she showed identical books with different call numbers, is infinitely superior to former days when the books were merely on shelves in the Science recreation room. "Students often became a little too attached to some of the books they borrowed," she explained.

The task of getting things in order is really quite a job, according to Mrs. Hubbard, who doubts whether she will ever complete it. The doubts, however, were greatly minimized in our eyes when we beheld the changes already accomplished in the literature section. Essays, speeches, techniques, and collections of the world's best literature are all arranged so that even the inexperienced can tell at a glance just what material is available in any desired literary field.

Found Rare Books

In the files on the rare books, we found listed several Incunabula. A hasty reference to the dictionary rewarded us with the fact that these are works published before or immediately after 1500 A. D. One such volume, printed with old block engraving, attracted our special attention with the date "1545."

There is also an abundance of Americana, usually in the form of pamphlets and old papers, which

Rector Speaks To Educators

At the last national meeting of the members of the Association of American Colleges, the Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., President of Loyola College, delivered a paper to the assembly titled "College Alumni and Citizenship." The Association convened at Atlantic City during the week of January 8. Fr. Bunn delivered his speech on January 11, in the afternoon.

Pointing out the inevitable choice between "power, wealth, and place" on the one hand, and a "decent world community which can and will guarantee for every group and individual a just equality of opportunity," Fr. Bunn proclaimed that it is the responsibility and duty of the "citizen" upon whom this democracy was founded, to "work in the sweat of hard labor and patient effort" for this decent world community.

As Secretary of the Commission for Citizenship, Fr. Bunn also gave a report on the Citizenship Committee to the convention which terminated on Friday, January 12.

Among the five other notable speakers at the convention was General George Marshall, of the United States Army.

Fr. Gibbons Will Take Vows

The Rev. Paul J. Gibbons, S. J., will take his final vows in the Society of Jesus on Friday, February 2. The ceremony will be held in the college chapel, beginning at 9 a. m.

The vows will be accepted by the Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., President of Loyola College, who represents the Father General of the Society. This ceremony signifies the final solemn consecration of the priest to his religious vocation.

Fr. Gibbons entered the Order at St. Andrew-on-Hudson, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in September, 1927, and was ordained at Woodstock College in June, 1940. He came to Loyola in the summer of 1942, and has been the Moderator of THE GREYHOUND ever since.

At present, Fr. Gibbons teaches Freshman and Junior English, Freshman and Sophomore Public Speaking, and Effective and Advanced Writing in the school of Adult Education.

workable system of voting. That this constitutes a difficult problem is quite apparent from the failure of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference to decide this point with reference to the proposed Security Council.

Voting Procedure

On the question of voting procedure, it seems best to the Committee to exclude entirely the rule of unanimity. Action limited to unanimous agreement would mean no action at all. While the democratic idea of the rule of the majority is desirable, it is hardly possible in the relations between sovereign states. The existence of a minority of forty-nine per cent in opposition makes political adherence to a policy extremely difficult if not impossible. To be workable and enforceable, decisions must be supported by well above fifty per cent. A vote of two-thirds or three-fourths should be required on all decisions except matters of ordinary routine.

No Great-Power Veto

The support of the great-power is also important to successful enforcement of settlements, and the powers will be slow to give the necessary majority to an undertaking that does not appear to have a sufficient great-power backing. But by no means should the idea of a great power veto be permitted. If a Security Council is formed, it must be able to act over the veto of any power regardless of its size or power. The goal is "collective" security; the "great-power veto" would be mere power politics.

3. Measures for Enforcement of Decisions. The mere announcement of decisions by the international political body is far from their settlement. They must be followed by real enforcement. A State that refuses to abide by the judgment of this body must be subjected to increasing pressure beginning with moral, leading to economic, and, where necessary, ending in military sanctions.

All Types Of Sanctions

Moral and economic sanctions are easy to understand, and not too difficult to enforce if supported by a sufficiently large majority. Military sanctions involve more serious problems. The problems would be simple enough in a real "world state" where the world armed forces would simply act. But in a world of national states the difficulties are multiplied. On this question the Committee can merely recognize the alternative without coming to agreement on one.

Military sanctions may be carried out by an international force under its international commanders, or by ear-marked national contingents under joint chiefs of staff of the nations. Both systems involve difficulties. National feeling opposes the idea of an international force. Effectiveness and certainty of action is impaired where reliance must be placed on national contingents responding to an international call.

Force Presents Dangers

The use of force is fraught with difficulties and dangers. The main hope of the world seems to be in the prospect that before its power will be needed by the international organization, the peaceful settlement of disputes will have progressed so far as to obviate the necessity of its actual use.

Invitation Ball Tomorrow Eve Offers Killian

The February 1945 Senior Class members have extended invitations to their guests to be present at the Senior Ball tomorrow evening at Levering Hall.

The music will be furnished by the Rudy Killian Orchestra. Dancing will be from ten o'clock until two. The affair will be strictly formal.

Connolly Chairman

According to Gerard T. Connolly, chairman of the event, each member of the Senior Class has been permitted to invite eight close friends to this dance. Many servicemen home on leave and furlough will be special guests.

Rudy Killian has guaranteed that an orchestra of at least eight musicians will furnish the music. Refreshments will be served. Donald Giblin is assisting Mr. Connolly in making plans for the occasion.

Last Class Social

Approximately seventy couples are expected to be on hand for this, the last official social gathering of the Senior Class.

Five Secure Scholarships

The competitive examination for scholarships to Loyola College was given in the Library Building at Evergreen on Saturday morning, January 13, from 9 until 12.

The subjects comprising the examination were: a psychological aptitude test, and others in English composition, algebra and plane geometry. Five $400.00 scholarships were awarded to the high school students who attained the highest grades in the examination.

Although the number of applicants for the tests was not as large as in previous years, there was a representative group from such high schools as Loyola, Mt. St. Joseph's, Calvert Hall, Poly, City, Patterson Park, Southern, and Forest Park.

Running With The Hounds

By Frank Cashen

When the Greyhounds go to the post tomorrow night to face the Mt. St. Mary's quint, they will be gunning for their first Mason-Dixon Conference victory over the Mountaineers in nearly two years. The Hounds will have a double incentive to beat the Mountmen. Not only are they seeking revenge for the 50-36 decision they dropped this season, but the basketballers are still smarting from the 40-39 game they dropped in the Mason-Dixon Conference playoffs last year.

With the hardwood season at the halfway mark, the Evergreen quintet can boast of a 6-5 record. But the toughest games are yet to come. John Marshall, which always floors a powerful contingent, has its usual tricky aggregation. They have been sinking everything in sight, and this included some highly touted fives.

Villanova, which pinned the Hounds in their early season joust, may be a little tamer on the Evergreen court, but the Wildcats are always strong. La Salle, by far the best basketball team we have seen in action against Loyola, has yet to face the Hounds in Philadelphia.

Eagles Powerful

American University's Eagles appear to have the best team in the conference at this writing. Never a champion but always a spirited contender, the Eagles have come up with a squad that has speed and experience. The Poston brothers, John and Dick, who played a lot of basketball for the Eagles last year, are two of the returning veterans. John and Dick make an excellent contrast when you see them on the court: Dick towering six foot, and John standing about five foot one.

To back up these two veterans, the Eagles have two cagers named Smith and Love, and both are sharpshooting customers, as was discovered. Love chalked up twenty-six points when the Eagles buried Washington College under a deluge of baskets to race to a 76-38 victory.

The loss of Sal Cammarata to the armed forces has been sorely felt. His experience meant a lot when the going was rugged, and he was an excellent competitor.

Jerry Cohen has been playing some real defensive basketball, and has been able to garner some high point totals. Sid Roche has been ineffective since the Captain of the Port contest, and we look for the big fellow to regain his eye for the basket in the near future. Longley and Gorman are improving with each contest, and need only experience to make them first-string material.

Orchids To Bardelman

But the orchids go to George Bardelman. An excellent floorman and a steady all-around player, George has taken a liking for the basket and has been caging some fine one-handed bucket shots. He walked off with high scoring honors in the Western Maryland game, and has been pushing the ball through the hoop with a regularity that is fascinating to watch.

* * * * *

The intramural league is scheduled to start next week. The 'Mural Leagues at Loyola always provide some interesting contests, for what they lack in finesse they make up in spirit.

Spirit Lacking

And speaking of spirit, that reminds us that spirit and spirited backing are definitely lacking when the varsity five is on the floor. In spite of the good games, indicated by the close scores, the gym has yet to be filled when the Greyhounds are pounding the hardwood. Elsewhere in Baltimore, sport contests are played to capacity crowds. Yet at Evergreen the games are attended by only the proverbial "handful."

The lack of students at the game is noticeable. We cannot say much of any student who will not support his own team. So let's get out to Evergreen tomorrow night and watch the Greyhounds run Mt. St. Mary's into the ground, and let's see what we can do about strengthening that cheering section!

Loyola Nets M-D Victory

The Greyhounds eked out their third Mason-Dixon Conference victory when they defeated Washington College, 44-39, on Loyola's court.

The Shoremen swept to an early lead and ran up seven points before the Hounds could tally a field goal. Loyola gradually whittled the score down, and Sid Roche's field goal and foul shot cut the Washington College lead to a single point as the half ended with Washington leading 18-17.

At the start of the final period, the Hounds came back to counter four quick goals and added a charity toss to take a commanding lead. Washington pulled up to within five points of Loyola but the clock ran out and Loyola had taken the victory.

'Mural Quintets To Open Season Next Semester

The intramural basketball season will start rolling immediately after the final examinations. At the present time there are three teams entered in competition, and it is expected that the Freshman Class, which will enter on January 31, will provide the material for a fourth squad.

The strongest quintet will probably be offered by the Ayd's Aggies, a team consisting of Captain Lou Franz, Frank Cashen, Bill Hodges, George Edwards, Dan Feeney, and Ed Fleishman.

The Baby Bullets, representing the Junior Class, have a formidable contingent headed by Captain Paul Coffay. Besides Coffay, the team consists of John Ahlers, Charlie Schmidt, Bill Rogers, Jim MacDonald and Paul Muth.

The sophomore team is still in the process of being formed. But with such material as Nippy Funk, Bill Seldon, Terry Fay and Vince Bagli to choose from, they should floor a reputable quint.

Hounds Sink Coast Guard

Loyola went completely berserk in defeating the Captain Of The Port, 70-50, in a non-conference contest at Evergreen. The Hounds made use of their "race horse" style of play to run up the highest point total in the 1944 Maryland College season.

Cammarata Bows Out

Sal Cammarata, pacesetter of the Greyhound offense, and holdover from last year's squad, played his final game for the duration and flashed brilliantly as he ran up eighteen points. But Sid Roche took scoring honors for the game as he marked up twenty-two points, collected on ten field goals and two free tosses.

The Sailors romped to an early lead and at the quarter mark were out in front, 17-9. Then the Greyhounds began their sensational spurt and halftime found the Green and Gray team out in front, 34-26.

Hounds Pass Accurately

In the final half the Hounds began passing the ball with deadly accuracy, and this, plus superior marksmanship, brought the ultimate victory.

Meagher Announces Athletic Policies . . .

Dear Fellow Students:

I deeply appreciate your support in the recent elections for the Presidency of the Loyola College Athletic Association. I shall endeavor with my utmost ability to fulfill the obligations as head of the Athletic Association.

As you are well aware, there was some doubt as to whether Loyola would enter intercollegiate competition in basketball. However, she did and is now battling for top honors in the Mason-Dixon cage race. With the league play half completed, the team more than ever needs the whole-hearted support of each and every student, to enable the squad to emerge victorious at the final whistle.

At the present time, we are planning to expand our intramural sports program to include, besides football, softball and basketball, other sports such as wrestling, swimming, tennis, track, etc. However, none of these plans will come about concretely until we are assured of the success of the present intramural basketball league.

We are greatly pleased at the recent expansion in the membership of the Block L Club. We will continue to schedule those famous Block L socials frequently during the coming term.

Sincerely,

Charlie Meagher.

Greyhounds Topple Camp Holabird

Loyola came from behind in the fading minutes of the game to eke out a 33-32 victory over Camp Holabird in a game played at Evergreen last month.

After finding themselves on the short end of an 18-11 halftime score, the Hounds came back in the final stanza to outscore their opponents 22-14. Sid Roche pumped in two field goals with minutes to go, and George Bardelman made the score 33-30 when he made good on a charity toss.

The Soldiers garnered one more basket before the game ended but they were powerless when Loyola applied the "freeze" until the clock ran out.

Players' Outlook . . .

George Bardelman—"Considering the age and experience of the team, I feel we are doing our very best. We may not be as flashy as the team was last year, but we will keep plugging. By the time of the playoffs we should be ready."

John Mudd—"It has been pretty rugged lately against outside competition. We can hold our own against anything in the conference."

Rip Roberts—"If we don't suffer any further losses to the armed forces and can keep our team intact, we should go places."

Tom Gorman—"I feel that the team is improving all the time, and when the playoffs come we should have reached our peak. We may not win them all, but you can bet we will be out there trying."

Ralph Sybert—"We are pointing for that conference championship. We should be able to meet all comers in the conference, and perhaps hold our own against the outside teams."

Sid Roche—"There seem to be no outstanding teams in the conference this year. Our team has the right spirit and is developing fast. We should give the others in the conference a severe battle."

Bill Cahill—"I feel we deserve more cooperation from the student body. The team has the right fighting spirit, but how about the rest of the school?"

Knobby Harris—"I will not be around long enough to see the season out, but I know the team is made of championship material. I'm counting on the Hounds to come through with the conference championship."

Bob Longley—"We miss Sal Cammarata. However, we have a lot of improving to do before we reach the top. With teams like American U. and Bridgewater in this league, we will really have to move to take the conference."

Jerry Cohen—"We are still trying to work out that winning combination, and with a little bit of luck we should make out alright. We may not be as strong as the team last year, but we have the Loyola spirit."

Hounds Keyed For Gallaudet

Tonight the Hounds will journey to Washington, D. C., to tackle the Gallaudet five. Tomorrow night, at 8:45 p. m. in the school gymnasium, they will take on Mt. St. Mary's. Both contests are Mason-Dixon Conference encounters.

Split Previous Contests

Loyola has previously played both of the teams, defeating Gallaudet on the Evergreen court 50-47 in a thrilling overtime clash, and losing to Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg, 50-36.

Gallaudet has a potentially strong club with several lettermen and three holdovers from their Conference Championship squad of two years ago. When playing on their own court the Silents should be particularly dangerous.

Mounts Seek Fifth Victory

The Greyhounds should be keyed for St. Mary's, for they have never defeated the Mountmen since St. Mary's began using their V-12 trainees. Three times last year Loyola bowed to the Mount, twice in conference play and once, 40-39, for the Mason-Dixon Conference Championship.

Evergreen Five Whips Terrors

The Greyhounds stretched their winning skein to five games as they opened their 1945 collegiate basketball season, downing Western Maryland, 29-26, at Westminster.

Johnny Mudd's one hand shot from the corner of the court insured the victory for the Hounds with the clock running out. The Green and Gray were leading, 27-26, and it was still anybody's ball game when Mudd, freshman prodigy, applied the clincher.

George Bardelman, diminutive Loyola guard, took high scoring honors for the contest, securing five field goals and making good on one out of two from the foul circle.

Western Maryland, attempting a return to collegiate competition after a one year lay-off, used a tight zone defense to keep the usually high-scoring Hounds in check.

La Salle Humbles Greyhound Cagers

Loyola's five game winning streak was broken when La Salle College of Philadelphia handed the Hounds an 82-42 defeat.

The Explorers ran into an early 24-5 lead and continued to pile on the baskets, leading at halftime 40-11.

Loyola came back strong in the second stanza but the best they could do was thirty-one points against La Salle's forty-two.

Loyola Tops Jays, 39-31

Loyola went on a scoring spree in the concluding minutes of a savagely contested game to defeat Johns Hopkins, 39-31, on the Evergreen court, giving the Hounds their second consecutive Mason-Dixon conference victory.

The game was a seesaw battle throughout. Loyola poured in two quick baskets before the initial half ended and at the halfway mark held an 18-14 lead.

Hopkins came roaring back in the second canto and tied the score before the Greyhounds could tally. But Loyola was not to be denied, and matched the Blue Jays basket for basket, finally pulling away from the Jays with less than five minutes remaining.

Jerry Cohen and Sal Cammarata led the Loyola offense with ten and eight points respectively while George Bardelman tallied seven. Mike Gold was high man for the Jays with eight points.

BSquadCagers Boast 1-3 Mark

The Loyola B squad started their season on a winning note as they defeated the Guilford A. C. 15-11. At the present time they hold a 1-3 record, having lost to Calvert Hall, 42-25; Loyola, 43-18; and Towson Catholic, 29-25.

The little Greyhounds were simply outclassed by Calvert Hall, but against Loyola High it was a different story. The college team used an unorthodox method of offense and stunned the younger high school team during the first half. The Greyhounds led at the end of the first canto 16-15.

The Dons held the college boys powerless during the concluding half as the Greyhounds got only two points. In the meantime, the Dons unleashed a potent attack and piled on basket after basket to take the contest, 43-18.

The Towson Catholic contest turned out to be the most closely played of the year, and although the Hounds dropped the decision to the Owls, it produced some sterling basketball. The game was close throughout. Late in the contest the Towson team secured a four point lead and froze the ball as the Hounds tried in vain to gain possession.

STARS-IN-STRIPES

Ensign Cornelius T. Walker, USNR, '43, is now serving under the insignia of the Amphibious Forces of the United States Navy at Ocracoke, North Carolina. He received his commission after training at the Navy V-12 school of Notre Dame University in South Bend, Indiana.

He was graduated from Baltimore City College in June, 1940. While at City, he worked on the school paper, was a member of the debating society, an honor student, and an outstanding athlete, participating in lacrosse, basketball, and tennis.

Excelled In Sports

While at the College, Cory excelled in sports. For three years he held down an attack position on the Greyhound lacrosse team. During the game against Washington and Lee in 1942, he tallied nine goals to set a new single game scoring record. He also played for four years on the intramural basketball and softball squads.

A member of the Block L Club for four years, he was chosen the vice-president in his junior and senior years.

Cory's interest did not stop with sports. He was an active member of the Sodality for his four years at Loyola, and also belonged to the International Relations Club, the Accounting and Commerce Club, and the Social Science Club. In his freshman year, while a member of the Jenkins Debating Society, he was elected vice-president of that organization.

Sal Cammarata Enters Service

Sal Cammarata, Loyola's sharp-shooting veteran basketball player, entered the United States Army on December 28. Sal, one of the two remaining players from last year's squad, was without a doubt the spark plug of this year's contingent.

Played As Freshman

Cammarata played varsity ball last year as a freshman, securing most of his experience on the B squad, as he had never played in organized basketball before entering the College. He saw action in nearly every varsity game, and although not a member of the starting quintet, he proved a capable replacement.

Loyola counted heavily on Sal's experience this year, and he turned in several brilliant performances before entering the Army. Probably the highlight of Sal's career at Loyola was his phenomenal scoring performance against the Captain of the Port. Playing his last game before entering the service, Sal ran up eighteen points as the Hounds sunk this Coast Guard quint, 70-50.

Scored Fifty-Seven Counters

Sal garnered a total of fifty-seven points in varsity competition this year before he entered the service.

As a member of Ayd's Aggies, intramural football champs, Cammarata was the third high scorer in the league. A sports enthusiast, Sal expected to participate in varsity baseball this spring.

Cory Walker

writer on THE GREYHOUND. In his final year Cory was a member of the staff of the 1943 Evergreen.

Ensign Walker was recently married to Miss Alice Marie Johnson of Pensacola, Florida. The ceremony took place at St. Michael's Church in Pensacola on September 7, 1944.

The 1944 social season of Loyola College bowed out true to form with a gala Christmas party given by the Block L Club on December 21. The affair was preceded by a basketball game between the Greyhounds and Captain of the Port. Loyola emerged the victor, 70-50.

After the game, the crowd adjourned to the Recreation Room where there was a large decorated Christmas tree, and substantial refreshments.

The social was highlighted by the presentation of a Christmas gift to the coach by the members of the team. The coach then personally introduced each member of the basketball team to the gathering.

Mountmen Best Green And Gray At Emmitsburg

Mt. St. Mary's Mountaineers handed Loyola's Greyhounds their first conference defeat, trouncing the Hounds, 50-36. The win enabled St. Mary's to run their string of consecutive victories over Loyola to four.

Diffie High Scorer

Diffie, the six foot three center of the Mountaineers, was a thorn in Loyola's side throughout the night. He garnered twenty-three points to take high scoring honors for the contest. A hard man to stop under any conditions, he was particularly effective in the Mount's small gym.

The Green and Gray apparently had trouble in getting used to the floor and several times slid to the hardwood as they drove in for baskets. The Hounds lost the services of their ace floorman, George Bardelman, midway in the final half, when he left the game via the foul route.

Hounds Trail At Half

The Mountmen broke the ice early in the contest and raced to an early lead. St. Mary's led at the half 29-21.

Sid Roche was high man for the Hounds with ten points; Jerry Cohen was next in line with nine.

ALUMNI DOINGS

ALUMNI BANQUET

The Executive Committee has again decided to continue the Annual Alumni Banquet as part of its effort to maintain traditions, and keep alive the activities of the Association. Naturally, the numbers will be smaller than we would like to see them, and the gathering will be lacking in some of the festive spirit of pre-war years. But the point of importance is that the Alumni will come together for an evening to renew acquaintances, to renew contacts with the Loyola of 1945, and to welcome home the Alumni service men who happen to be passing through the city at the time.

If you have attended Alumni Banquets, recent or remote, you need no urging to come again this year. If you have not been attending, you owe it to yourself to come. Your classmates will be there. Why not call several of them and arrange for a reunion at the Banquet?

Remember the date, Shrove Tuesday, February 13, 1945. Reservations must be received by the Chairman of the Banquet Committee at Evergreen no later than February 5. The banquet will be held at the Belvedere Hotel beginning at 6:30 P. M. Tickets are $4.00.

GRADUATION EXERCISES

Graduation time is rolling around again. The next Exercises will be on Sunday, February 4. If you missed the last time, why not attend this Graduation with the Association? By taking part in the Academic Procession in cap-and-gown, you not only add color to the graduation but also pay a deserved tribute to the wartime additions to the ranks of the Association.

If you have your own cap-and-gown, just come to Evergreen in time for the Procession on February 4. If you need cap-and-gown call the Editor of Alumni Doings at Chesapeake 1020 at once, and your order will be taken care of promptly.

Let's fill the Alumni Section this Graduation Day!

SERVICE ALUMNI

Alumni are making news and history again, as the daily papers eloquently attest. Among those recently mentioned for outstanding valor is our own Marine Lt. Richard L. Michael Jr. of the Class of '43. "Dick" saw his first real action in the battle for the Peleliu Islands. In the course of one engagement on Suicide Ridge, he was able to direct the successful but most dangerous rescue of three wounded companions while under heavy Jap fire.

Another Alumnus to be commended for valor is Lt. John Milici, (MC) USNR, Class of '36. Lt. Milici, a medical officer who served with the U. S. Marines at Guadalcanal and Cape Gloucester, was presented the Presidential Unit Citation in November of 1944 for services in the Pacific War Areas.

Letters are still coming in from Alumni in all quarters. Lt. (j.g.) Sam Powers, USNR, Class of '39, writes in from his Destroyer Escort. Sam is another on the evergrowing list of Alumni who finds THE GREYHOUND a most valuable link with their old friends. Commenting on the work of Loyola today, Sam is particularly impressed by the foresight and broad planning that marks the policy of the College, and finds in it a boost to the morale of those necessarily immersed in the immediate war business of the present.

To mention all who have written, or even to list those who have stopped at Evergreen on leave or furlough, would be an impossible task. But you know your letters are always welcome, and your visits to the campus at Evergreen anxiously awaited.

ALUMNI ANNOUNCEMENTS

Wedding bells have sounded recently for Lt. Charles Gellner, USNR, Class of '40, and Miss Margaret Zillmor, in California. Lt. Gellner is now serving in the Pacific Area. The very best to you, Lt. and Mrs. Gellner!

Mr. and Mrs. Mario Cichelli recently announced the birth of a son, Richard James. Mario is of the Class of '40. We will keep a registration open for Richard James with the class that enters in September, 1962. Congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Cichelli!

Student Body Avidly Reads Senior Annual

The Evergreen of the class of February, 1945, made its promised appearance as the official chronicle of the graduating class. John J. Kernan was editor-in-chief of the book. The Rev. Joseph J. Ayd, S. J., professor of Sociology and Chaplain of the Maryland State Penitentiary, received the honor of the dedication. The Rev. Thomas J. Higgins, S. J., was moderator.

Wartime Format

Containing forty-eight pages and patterned after the Yearbook of the class of January, 1944, the new Evergreen has the same small wartime format and green cover. Aside from the Senior Section there is a full section of advertising, with the messages of the President and Dean in the front, as well as the pictures of the undergraduate classes and faculty.

Complete Coverage

Devoted mostly to the Senior Class, the book has two senior pictures on a page, along with the record and list of activities of each senior. Then there is a section listing the names of all the members of the class who have been inducted into the armed forces before graduation. This list numbers one hundred and twenty-four names, out of the one hundred and fifty-two who were on the rolls in September 1942 as Freshmen. Four other men departed, after three years, for Medical School.

The Associate Editor is Donald Giblin; Business Manager, Joseph Gessler; Advertising Manager, Dodd Carr; Assistant Advertising Manager, Vernon Dimarco; and Photography Editor, Walter Norris.

Maryland Educators Plan Benefits For Veterans

The Maryland Educational Conference for Post-War Organization convened for its first meeting of 1945 at Loyola College on January 3. The Very Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., President of Loyola College, presided over the meeting in his capacity of Chairman.

The meeting was primarily for the Executive Committee of the Conference which reported on the findings and proposals of the various sub-committees, and drew up two major resolutions with regard to the returning veterans.

High School Diplomas

First, concerning the veteran who has not finished high school, there will be no hard and fast rule. The State and City will make provisions for accelerated courses, and all will have the opportunity to take special examinations offered by the State Department of Education.

Colleges reserve the right to accept individuals after examinations and tests, and provisions will be made so that in the course of their studies such individuals will secure, either through equivalent exams or by work in high school matter, the necessary units required for a high school diploma or certificate.

Guidance Bureau

The second point established was the proposal to establish a special Guidance Bureau with trained counsellors for the educational direction of those returning veterans who seek such counsel and wish to take advantage of the educational provisions of the G. I. Bill of Rights.

The Chairman, Fr. Bunn, along with Dr. Pullen and Dr. Weglein, were constituted the legislative committee, and were delegated to see the Governor to secure the actualization of this program.

The delegates first assembled in the Oak Room of the College for a buffet luncheon, and then proceeded to the Library for their task of discussing the problems of the returning veterans.

All Schools Represented

The Conference embraces and unifies forms of educational institutions in the state of Maryland with representatives from medical schools, law schools, dental schools, graduate schools, liberal arts colleges, junior colleges, State vocational training schools, public elementary and high schools, adult education, and even the Veterans Administration Bureau which recognizes and encourages the Conference.

Among the distinguished members present were: Dr. Isaiah Bowman, President of the Johns Hopkins University; Dr. H. C. Byrd, President of the University of Maryland; Dr. Glen D. Brown, of the State Department of Education, and Secretary of the Conference; Dr. David Weglein, Superintendent of City Public Schools; and Dr. T. G. Pullen, Superintendent of the State Department of Education, and Vice-Chairman of the Conference.

The entire library, we learned, is exceptionally well rounded out with every type of volume from first editions of Washington Irving to up-to-the-minute reference books and periodicals.

From the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the I. R. C. obtains current and controversial volumes which are given under the sole stipulation that they be kept together in one place.

From such worthy organizations and through the generous gifts which are donated, the library has high hopes of continuing its present program of expansion.
